County Official OK's Dean's Investigation

County Attorney Anthony Keast said the investigation made by Dean of Students Andrew Cogswell and Tom Monahan, assistant to the dean of students, Saturday night was "justified."

Because the University has Judicial Council, the Dean of Students has the right to investigate any complaints against students, Keast said.

Dean Cogswell said, "There are certain recognized obligations that the Dean of Students' office has toward both students and townspeople to investigate any complaints made against occupants of University approved housing."

"It is, I am sure, much better that we do the investigating than others," Cogswell said.

The county attorney's office claims no jurisdiction over the University's methods of settling disciplinary problems, the county attorney said.

The University has the right to set up its own rules governing the situation, according to Keast.

Women Honored By Mortar Board At Smarty Party

The annual Mortar Board Smarty Party for women will be held at the Kapa Alpha Theta house from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight.

The party is in honor of the ten top scholastic women in each class. They are chosen on the basis of quarter grades and class standing from fall quarter.

The seniors are Arlene Ward, Sandra Armstrong, Mary K. White, Marilyn Moore, Adranne Newman, Nancy Ettinger, Roxie Perrior, Pam Brechbill, Eugena Brijkovec and Joan Murphy.

Mortar Board members are not considered for the honor.

Juniors are Barbara Keenan, Marcia Smith, Darlene Blomstrom, Gloria Stevenson, Joan Tryon, Connie Feig, Shelia Lacy, Mikell Peck, Shirley Smith and Pat Davis. Sophomores are Marlene Kolstad, JoAnn Firm, Eva Nisser, Kay Thomas, Miriam Leib, Lynne Kundle, Ilene Berkram, Nancy Ruckman, Marilyn Osher and Linda Copley.

Thirteen freshmen are being honored because eight tied for sixth place with a 3.6 grade point average carrying 16 credits.

Segregation Topic Of Dr. Boddie's RE Speech Here

The Rev. Charles Boddie, D.D., representing the Baptist denomination, is on campus today as a Religious Emphasis speaker.

Dr. Boddie will speak at a coffee hour in the Religious Center of the Arts and Crafts Building today from 4 to 5 p.m. His topic will be "Racial Integration in American Colleges and Universities."

He will talk about the Negro spiritual and lead the group in the singing of spirituals from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. in the Yellowstone Room of the Lodge.

Dr. Boddie is associate secretary in the Missionary Personnel Dept. of the American Baptist Convention and a member of the convention's board of education. He is the author of "A Giant on the Earth" and "The Basis of the Negro Spiritual."

Dr. Boddie will also speak at a faculty luncheon in conference room 1 at the Lodge. His topic will be "Revival of Religious Interest in America."

CONCERT TONIGHT—Gold and Fisdale, due pianists, will present a Community Concert tonight at the University theater at 8:15. They met at the Julliard School of Music in New York and gave up soloist careers for due pianoism. For the past five years they have been giving concerts in Europe. Tickets are on sale at the Lodge desk and will also be sold at the concert.

Shakespeare and Halmark Differ When Writing Valentine Greetings

BY KEITH ROBINSON

Those in the past ages said it this way:

"Good morrow, friends! St. Valentine is past;
Begin these wood-birds but to couple now?"

—Shakespeare 'Midsummer Night's Dream'

We of the modern era now say it this way:

"Desperate on how to lose weight?

Try chopping off your ugly head!

—Halmark, 'When You Know Enough to Send the Very Best'

Just what brought about this major tradition of sending heart-shaped sentiments hasn't been traced very accurately through the annals of history.

St. Valentine was a priest of Rome who was imprisoned for succoring persecuted Christians. He became a convert himself, and although he restored the sight of his jailer's blind daughter, he was martyred by being clubbed to death, Feb. 14, 309 A.D.

February 14 was established as Valentine's day, when, according to ancient tradition, the birds choose their mates for the year.

DU MAS TO REVIEW BOOK

Dr. Frank M. du Mas will review his book, "Manifest Structure Analysis," at the Psi Chi meeting tonight.

The meeting, open to the public, is scheduled for 8 p.m. in LA 307.

It was an old custom in England to draw lots for lovers on this day and the person who was chosen became the drawer's Valentine. The Valentine was given a present, sometimes very expensive, but often merely a pair of gloves.

Later Valentine's Day came to be frequently represented by a greeting card of a sentimental, humorous, or vulgar nature. This custom is said to have had its origin in a pagan practice connected with the worship of Juno on or about this day.

Practice Has Changed

Today the practice of sending Valentine greeting cards is quite changed. People today have reverted to the paganistic practice of the sentimental greeting or the vulgar. It seems they send the Valentine to someone very dear, or to a person they hate.

Love doesn't even enter the picture now. A store with a large Valentine selection has cards that can be sent to grandma, grandpa, cousin, or hte newborn baby. Cards are even available to send to the person you would most like to slam, but know you couldn't get away with his face.

Card Has Deviated

The Valentine greeting card today has deviated from its former heart-shape and lace. Now the trend is for the simple cartoon design on paper comparable to cardboard. The shape of the card has been changed to that resembling a government 'W-2' form. The change has undoubtedly come from our mechanized society and our attitude of conciseness in business.

It seems that from Shakespeare's time until now our conception of Valentine's Day has turned into a force of habit rather than good old fashioned clubbing. One suggestion is that we return to the days of yore and have a good old fashioned stoning in the middle of the oval.

The ceremonies could be finished with a mass prayer to a paganistic symbol on Mount Sentinel and then have the men draw names of campus co-eds for future bird watching dates.

Petitions Nil For Chairmanship As JC Primary Draws Near

No petitions for Judicial Council chairman have been turned in, and it is beginning to appear as though there will be none.

The primary elections have been scheduled for Feb. 22. Deadline for submitting petitions is 5 p.m. Friday.

One graduate student studying law had considered running for the office. He questioned about 100 students and faculty members for opinions about the council. From those he talked to, he surmised two strikes against the council.

"I found more than student apathy," he said. "In addition to a general lack of interest, I noted a good deal of animosity. Older students seemed to resent the idea that 'kids' had the authority to rule the academic life and death of others.

"It is going to take a tremendous amount of time and effort to bring the council to a position of respect on this campus. If I were an undergraduate, it is a job I would like to tackle. As it is, it would probably mean forfeiting a law degree."

Could Be Useful

However, most of the persons questioned believed the council still could perform a useful function, he said. Leadership will be an essential factor in its success, they agreed.

Meanwhile, the council has done some reorganizing on its own. Members decided Tuesday night to have the dean of students, the assistant to the dean, associate dean and at least one faculty member sit in on the meetings.

The visitors will be non-voting members, and will serve as advisers only. A partial list of candidates for the faculty positions was drawn up, but no decisions were made.

Kaimin Chiefs To Be Chosen

Kaimin editor and business manager for 1957-58 are scheduled to be selected by Publication's Board Feb. 20.

Persons interested in the positions were asked to turn in written applications to Kay Blaszek, publications board chairman, or John Bansch, Kaimin editor.

Candidates for editor must be journalism majors and have had either one quarter of reporting practice, one quarter of copyreading practice or both. Candidates must have attended MSU for at least three quarters including this quarter.

Business manager candidates must have junior standings at the time of selection. They must have a knowledge of advertising and business procedure, Miss Blaszek said.

The editor receives $70 per month for eight months and the business manager receives $50 per month for nine months.

Bear Paws Help To Buy Carving

The Lewis and Clark Museum in Helena is selling a carving of two Montana Indian villages to the University, according to President Carl McFarland.

Glen McGivney, co-chairman of the Bear Paw projects committee, said the Bear Paws are contributing $300 toward the purchase of the carving. It is being offered to the University at less than its estimated value of $2,000.

The carving was made by a Montana Indian and is considered a masterpiece.

McGivney said other tentative Bear Paw projects include erecting a model statue of Abraham Lincoln. The statue is an original model of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington D. C. Tentative plans have been made to place it at one end of the oval or in the Library.

Another project may include placing bronze lettering similar to that on the Planetarium on all University buildings.

Former Instructor Given Certificate

M.Sgt. Milton Hansen, former ROTC instructor here, has been awarded the 6th Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding performance as a rifle instructor in the University ROTC Department.

Hansen was transferred from the University's Military Science and Tactics staff last December and is presently serving with the Army in Mannheim, Germany.

The award cited Hansen for his outstanding performance in building championship rifle teams at the University. Hansen also was commended for his efforts to improve the relationships between the military and civilians.

Buses to Bring Anaconda Fans

Three chartered buses are scheduled to arrive at the Field House Saturday, Feb. 23, carrying 100 to 125 Anaconda fans to attend the Grizzly-Brigham Young University game.

The buses are chartered by the Anaconda Chamber of Commerce and the game will be the final booster night for the 1956-57 Grizzly basketball season.

The Anaconda group is scheduled to unload at the Field House near 7:15 p.m. It is hoped there will be local fans on hand to greet them, Ross Miller, acting director of the public service division, said.

After the game the boosters are to be served a buffet dinner in the Lodge and entertainment is planned by University performers. The group will board their buses for the return trip to Anaconda following the dinner.

An added attraction is planned for the half-time of the final game of the '57 season.

The Cougarettes, 35 girls from BYU who do everything from South Sea island dances to precision marches and who have been featured in several national magazines, will present a half-time show.

George (Jiggs) Dahlberg, director of athletics, saw them perform at the Grizzly-BYU game in Provo earlier this season, and said he regarded the show as "some of the finest half-time entertainment" seen in the conference.

Student body officers from BYU also may make the trip to Missoula.

MSC Enrollment Attains New High

Registrar Martha Hawksworth has announced that registration at Montana State College has reached an all-time high of 3,183 students.

She said that scholastic and other reasons caused the dropout of 324 students from the previous high of 3,175 during the fall quarter. But she added that this was more than made up by the 337 other students who registered this quarter.

A Valentine Dance will be held in "The Room" this afternoon from 3 to 6. "The King's Men" will provide music. Admission for the dance is 25 cents.

phrase. So terrifying that I have been forced to re-appraise myself in the light of J-Council's latest charge against a student. Sorrowfully I am forced to admit that I, too, am guilty of unbecoming conduct.

Although totally unaware of what constitutes legal unbecoming conduct, I will all-inclusively admit to missing convocations, spitting on the sidewalk, walking on the grass, and sundry other offenses which obviously are unbecoming conduct.

Such a terrifying phrase was last brought to my mind during my army service, when I was confronted with conduct unbecoming to a soldier. After innumerable lectures on Articles of War, and the Uniform Code of Military Justice, I came to the conclusion that unbecoming conduct among soldiers is any that your commanding officer deems unbecoming.

Since this letter is burdened with conduct, unbecoming, unbecoming conduct, and vice-versa, I pose this question:

When will the Uniform Code of University Justice be out?

Been Studying All Night?

To hear students talk one gets the impression there is something exceedingly valorous in staying up all night to study. That is the impression one gets, at any rate, when listening to these wee hour scholars tell of their exploits the next day.

Notice one of these all night scholars when he comes to campus the next day—bloodshot eyes, dulled mind and uncontrollable shaking. Does he go to class and sleep through lectures? No, he does not. Instead he gathers his admirers around him, huddles in a corner of the smoker for coffee—gallons of coffee. He hangs his head. He rubs his already-red eyes. He twitches. He yawns. And finally someone asks that inevitable question.

"Another all-night date, eh?" A friend grins sheepishly and nudges him in the side.

"No . . . (impressive yawn) . . . Stayed up all night." A pause of considerable length of time for everyone to prepare themselves for the gem to come. "Studied."

This brings a gleam to the eye of every listener. One would think the topic was, "my operation." Everyone leans forward, anxious to tell of their latest all-night spree over studies. And, in most cases, each succeeding story sounds as plausible as most operation stories.

"Hadden't cracked a book all quarter," one reminisces dreamily. "Suddenly, out of nowhere, there was a final staring me in the face." This goes on: "Nothing to do but read two books, a total of 1763 pages, all in one sitting. Had to memorize most of it, too."

"Ain't that a blast?" says another with feeling. "But listen to what happened to me one quarter. I had a term paper due the last day of class—didn't get around to starting on it 'til the last day of the quarter and I had two finals the next day. Had all this to do in one and the same night."

This brings a much needed pause. For this is a story hard to beat. The group slurps coffee in unison and each tries desperately to concoct a tale more impressive than the aforementioned one.

Finally someone breaks the silence.

"For a final blow, listen to this. Took the How-to-Study course one quarter and stayed up one whole night studying for the final."

"So?"

"So, I flunked the course."

"Yes, sir," someone chips in, "we college students have a tough go of it."

It's a good thing for the pride of suffering students that no one ever asks how to go about studying all night. For actually very little is accomplished during a night-long spree.

Since the decision to take No-Doz was earlier in the day there is a perfectly logical reason for not getting around to the work at hand before midnight. "After all," one tells oneself, "I've got the whole night ahead."

And, since the whole night lies ahead, there is no reason why the necessary breaks between study sessions can't be extended a little. Why not take an extra 15 minutes whenever it's time for a five. (Coffee breaks are best if taken every 35 minutes, college students have found. And why not lay the book down every once in a while just to rest the eyes? It's GOOD for the eyes. And why not study while sprawled out on a bed? It makes it much easier to take refreshing little naps. Think of all the time you waste walking to the bed from the desk every time you feel like a nap.

And suddenly, before you know it, it's time to leave for campus. Of course, you haven't accomplished a thing in the way of lessons. But it's good for one's social standing to be able to say at least twice a quarter, that you have been up all night—studying.

Grizzlies In Denver Tonight Seeking 6th Skyline Victory

The Montana Grizzlies seek their sixth win of the conference season when they meet the Denver Pioneers in Denver tonight. Tonight's game is a crucial contest for both Montana and Denver. If the Grizzlies win, they will strengthen their hold on second place. A Pioneer victory is a "must" if they hope to finish in the first division.

Montana has a five and three record, placing them in a second place tie with Utah. Denver is tied for third with Utah State. Denver and Utah State have conference records of four wins and four losses.

Brott Paces Pioneers

Dick Brott, Denver's 6-8 center, is the main obstacle in the Grizzlies path tonight. Brott leads the Skyline in scoring and is battling BYU's Tom Steinke for the individual scoring honors.

He set a Denver University three-year scoring record earlier this year by making 325 points in 17 games for a 19.1 game average.

Other outstanding performers on Coach Hoyt Brawner's squad are Ernie Uthgenannt and Rocco Sligh.

Uthgenannt, a junior guard, turned in his best performance last weekend against the New Mexico Lobos. He scored on 12 of 20 shots from the floor for a total of 28 points.

Sligh, nicknamed the "Tree," is strong on defense and a good rebounder.

"The Montana and Utah contests this week," Coach Brawner said, "afford us our last chance to make a strong claim on a first division berth. We could move into second place with a double win this weekend."

Grizzly Preparations

The Grizzlies have been working hard in preparation for the five day road trip ahead. The Silvertips have yet to win a ball game away from home, and would like to break the jinx tonight.

Coach Frosty Cox has been drilling his charges on defense. He hopes to tighten up the Grizzly defense that lapsed in the game with Utah last week.

The Grizzlies defeated Denver 52-49 earlier this season in Missoula. In that game Clancy Waters and Zip Rhoades led the Grizzlies with 16 and 14 points respectively. Uthgenannt led the Pioneers, scoring 17 points.

Probable starting lineups:

Montana	Pos.	Denver
Rhoades	F	Peay
Dunham	F	Sligh
Sheriff	C	Brott
Waters	G	Uthgenannt
Erickson	G	Plath

Missoula Athlete Only N.Y. Giant Still Holding Out

Curt Barclay, former Missoula Legion pitcher, and a familiar figure to Missoula sport fans, is the only member of the 1957 New York Giant baseball team that has not returned his contract.

Barclay pitched for Minneapolis in the American Association last year. He was considered by many sports writers as the league's best pitcher.

Eddie Stanky, the former National League star and Minneapolis' manager last summer, said he expects "great things" from Barclay in years to come.

Barclay has returned his contract three times to the Giants.

Nester Win Drops PDT Into Fourth

The Nesters knocked Phi Delta Theta out of a tie for second place into fourth place Monday by defeating them 34-30 in an overtime contest.

Fouls told the tale, and in this instance were the margin of victory for the Nesters. The Nesters had 16 fouls called on them while the Phi Deltas had 22.

The winners made 16 foul shots while the losers made only 12.

Pangle was the high scorer for the winners with 10 points. Burton made a like number for the losers.

There were forfeits in both "B" and "C" leagues Monday. The Chiefs gained a win over Phi Sigma Kappa, and the Phantoms downed the Galloping Geese.

The Gunners took a close one from the Gulchers, 53-47, in a "D" league game. Gorsich led the Gunners with 15 points, but LaBrun of the losers was the game's leading scorer with 17.

Craig Ground West took the Gal. Goslin by a 50-41 count in the "E" league. Wilhelm of Craig and Sundt of the Goslin each led their team with 13 points.

BYU 15th IN NATION

Brigham Young's Cougars were rated 15th in the nation this week on the latest Associated Press poll. This is the first time in several weeks the Skyline leaders have been ranked among the top 20.

Intramural Teams Play Close Games

The Pogo Pups won a narrow 36-35 victory over the Falcons in "A" league intramural basketball play Tuesday.

The Falcons had the game under control during most of the first half, and held a seven point advantage at the half, but the Pups poured on the steam in the third and fourth periods to snatch the victory. Montgomery and Shepard led the way for the winners with 10 points each. Dupuis hit 15 for the Falcons.

The Braves downed the league-leading Fi Alpha Falfa squad 42-33 in a "B" league game. Redmond was the top scorer for the Braves with 15 points. Basolo and Dupuis each hit eight for the losers.

In "C" league play, Pharmacy took the Left Overs by a 41-35 count. At the half the two were tied at 20 points each. Raunig was the high scorer for Pharmacy with 12. Bissel of the Left Overs was high with 14.

The Baboons trimmed the Skunks 45-35 in the "D" league Tuesday. Russel hit 15 to lead the Baboons. Perry led the scoring for the Skunks with 12.

In the "E" league the Tomahawks drubbed the Loggers 34-26. Marcello made 10 points for the Tomahawks. Hallowell scored 8 points for the Loggers.
